

TWO BRIDAL FETES ENLIVEN SUNDAY

Rabbi Silverstone Performs Rapid Ceremonies.

CAKE, FLOWERS, AND TAXICABS

Adas Temple Is Scene of Marriage of Robert J. Lubner and Miss Rose Bennett, While Morris Katzman and Miss Lena Sachs Wed Hour Later at Above Sholem Synagogue.

Two hundred pounds of cake and ice cream, thirty bushels of fragrant flowers, scores of taxicabs, thousands of congratulations, and four hearts that beat as two, sum up a Sunday afternoon's matrimonial festa with Rabbi G. Silverstone in the role of Hymen. He united Robert J. Lubner, secretary of the A. C. Lubner Company, and Miss Rose Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bennett, at the Adas Israel Temple at 8 o'clock, and an hour later Miss Lena Sachs and Morris Katzman at the Above Sholem Synagogue.

Miss Sachs was given away by her brother, George Sachs. William M. Sachs was best man and Miss Rebecca Krupaw was maid of honor. The bride wore a hand-embroidered silk net over white, trimmed with peau de soie lace. The maid of honor wore a lace robe over pale blue silk. The bridesmaids were Miss Ella Sachs, Miss Blanche Katzman, Miss Lena Miller, and Miss Bessie Le Ven. The ushers were Frank Sachs, Abe Miller, Morris Miller, and Morris Hives.

Reception at Armory.
The wedding was followed by a reception, ball, and supper at the National Rifle's Armory. The grand march began at 8 o'clock, and instead of breaking up into dancing, the leaders finished the march by leading the guests down into the banquet room, where the wedding supper was served.

The wedding cake weighed seventy-five pounds, and was surrounded by a bride and groom standing under a wedding bell. The long banquet tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, and the jolly guests drank toast after toast to the bride and bridegroom.

After supper the guests were led to the ball room, and Miss Sadie Krupaw sang "All I Ask of You Is Love" and "The Ideal of My Dreams." After the songs, dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Katzman will leave for Annapolis tomorrow, where they will make their home, the bridegroom being in business there.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. Phillips, Miss Anna Sachs, Miss Bessie Levin, Mr. Harry Sachs, and Mr. Sidney M. Lewis, all of Baltimore.

Adas Temple Decorated.

Adas Israel Temple was beautifully decorated with white ribbons and palms for the Lubner-Bennett ceremony at 8 o'clock. The bride was escorted to the altar by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lubner and Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Fox. Her father gave her in marriage.

The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, the Misses Merlan and Sadie Hyken, Pansy and Cecilia Costin. They formed a "rainbow" escort and were gowned in different colored dresses.

Miss Bennett wore a lace robe over messaline silk, studded with pearls. The bride's mother wore changeable silk, and Mrs. Lubner, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in black satin with gold trimmings.

The best man was A. T. Schwartz, of the Naval Hospital Medical School. The ushers were Julius Richards, Morris Levy, and Morris Roginsky. Charlotte Lubner and Sylvia Fox, gowned in white, were flower girls, and led the bridal party to the altar. During the ceremony at the synagogue the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played. The bride and bridegroom occupied seats at the head of the guests' table and cut the wedding cake, which weighed nearly 100 pounds. Mr. Schwartz, the best man, read a score of congratulatory telegrams and letters from friends of the contracting parties in many parts of the country.

After the wedding supper dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Lubner left this morning for a wedding trip to Old Point Comfort, Va.

Volcano Again Active.
Mount Hecla in Iceland Is Threatening Eruption.

Copenhagen, Aug. 21.—After a period of quiescence lasting thirty-two years, Mount Hecla, a volcano in Iceland, is threatening eruption.

Smoke is pouring from the crater. The snow has vanished from the mountain, presumably the effect of internal heat. Earthquakes have been frequent recently. The inhabitants are anxious in the neighborhood of the mountain, being the most fertile and most civilized part of the island.

Beggar Leaves $14,000.

Paris, Aug. 21.—A woman who lived on the charity of neighbors in the Belleville quarter of Paris died suddenly of heart disease. When the authorities came to bury her at the public expense they found $14,000 hidden in her mattress.

Capital and Surplus, $2,500,000.

URGES SMALL EXPENDITURES.

Gen. Bixby Opposed to Large River Appropriations.

Brig. Gen. William H. Bixby, chief of engineers, has determined to discourage agitation for extraordinary expenditures for river and harbor projects. Estimates already submitted for public works of this character call for appropriations amounting to $50,000,000. Many of these estimates are said to be out of proportion and before they reach Congress they will be cut to the bone by Gen. Bixby and his associates. Speaking of the demand for river and harbor appropriations, Gen. Bixby said:

"Newspapers can aid immensely in the preparation of the next river and harbor bill by urging conservative estimates for projects. A yearly river and harbor bill is greatly to be desired, but if the newspapers insist upon their particular locality getting all that the most enthusiastic advocate of waterways improvements desires, the bill will become so large that its passage is out of the question."

RUNAWAY GIRLS CAPTURED HERE

Tired of Sightseeing, Will Return to Brooklyn.

Madeline Kelly and Annie Whalen, each seventeen years old, who left their homes in Brooklyn three weeks ago, were arrested yesterday at 305 First street southeast and are held at the house of detention on the charge of running away. They will be sent home today in charge of a detective.

The girls left home without a change of clothing, with little money and no prospects, and boarded a train for Washington. The intention was to obtain employment and travel further. They say they left home on a dare, and intended to go around the world.

They confided their ambition to those with whom they lived here, and letters were soon on their way to the girls' parents. Capt. Boardman a few days afterward received a request from the Brooklyn police, and the journey around the world was rudely interrupted.

Madeline says she has several small brothers and sisters and wants to go back to them. Annie says she lives at 131 Sands street, and while she has no sisters or brothers, yet she is quite willing to content herself with her father and mother. They obtained employment Saturday as salesgirls.

ESPERANTISTS BID ADIEU

Dr. Zamenhof Sees Great Future for Language in America.

Founder Declares Universal Tongue
Will Spread Quickly with Growth of Nation's Commerce.

Gis la revido.

Until we meet again.
This was the farewell yesterday of the foreign delegates to the sixth international congress of the World's Associations of Esperantists.

"I am well pleased with your country," said Dr. Zamenhof, of Poland, founder of Esperanto. "I see a great future for Esperanto here. But Americans, as they are practical and industrious, are a very prudent people. They do not jump at anything until they are certain that it is meritorious."

"This is the first time that you people have had a real opportunity to try out Esperanto as an international language. Now that you have seen that it is practical, that your prudence is satisfied, your industry will cause Esperanto to progress more rapidly than in other countries. Your commerce will prove the great medium for the spread of Esperanto in America."

"Esperanto is an auxiliary language, and is to replace no national language. It is to be the language of diplomacy and science and commercialism. And so your commerce with other nations grows. Esperanto will be more needed here and will spread quickly."

PULLMAN THEFTS LAID TO EX-PORTER

William Logan Is Grilled for More Clefts.

IS CAPTURED IN BALTIMORE

Trial Tuesday Will Prove Him Robber of Richmond Banker at Union Station Here the Police Believe, and Much Wanted Man in Many Cities—Pawn Tickets a Clue.

William Logan, a former Pullman porter, may solve a dozen mysterious Pullman car robberies of the South and Middle West Tuesday when he is taken from the District jail for arraignment in Police Court. He was arrested in Baltimore last week as a vagrant, and identified by papers found on his person as the man who on July 17 robbed Charles R. Burnett, cashier of the First National Bank of Richmond, at the Union Station here. Mr. Burnett retired to his berth in the Pullman about 11 o'clock. Awakened a short time afterward by the movement of the train, he reached under the pillow to learn the hour, and discovered that his watch, valued at $150, gold eyeglasses, gold-mounted fountain pen, and wallet containing a considerable amount of money had been stolen.

Detective Kleindienst was detailed on the case. The conductor in charge of the Pullman cars attached to that train and all of the negro porters were taken before the police officials and closely questioned. No clue was found. In the same week reports of robberies of like nature were reported from Atlanta, Ga., Nashville, Tenn., and Cleveland, Ohio.

Pawn Tickets a Clue.

When Logan was arrested in Baltimore, pawn tickets were found in his clothes. One was for Mr. Burnett's watch, deposited in a pawn shop in Baltimore. Logan was brought to this city by Detective Kleindienst and given a preliminary examination Friday in Police Court. The case was continued until Tuesday.

CONQUERING REBELS ARE ON THE WAY TO MANAGUA

routed and that Gen. Estrada is in full control of Managua by this time. My failure to receive information after so important an engagement is an ill omen."

Dr. Barrios and Sebastian Salinas have been in Washington as special envoys of Dr. Madriz in the hope of having the Department of State intercede in behalf of their leader. They have maintained friendly terms with Dr. Salvador Castillero, the Washington representative of Gen. Estrada, the insurgent leader.

Dr. Castillero said last night that he did not have the slightest doubt that Gen. Estrada had won, and that the revolution was nearing its end, with the insurgents as victors. He stated that the crossing of the river by the revolutionists means absolute victory.

The cablegram to Dr. Castillero was: "All our army forced a passage at Panalota. The enemy was routed after fourteen hours' fighting, leaving in our hands one field piece, 10,000 cartridges for small arms, 200 rifles, together with provisions and prisoners."

Dr. Castillero says that the regular Estrada army will be re-enforced on the west side of the river by an army of 1,000 revolutionists, under Gen. Saenz, who has been fighting on the Pacific Coast of Nicaragua for three months and has succeeded in capturing several small towns.

DETECTIVE GOES AFTER BOY

Mother Lays Son's Downfall to Dime Novels.

Willie Lally, Charged with Passing Bad Checks, Will Be Brought Here To-day.

Detective Cox departed last night with a pair of handcuffs to bring back William Lally, the seventeen-year-old boy arrested in New York Saturday after a trip to Europe and wanted here on a charge of passing worthless checks.

Willie's undoing came through dime novel literature, according to his mother, who is a charwoman in the Pension Office. A son of Sgt. William Lally, of the Second Battalion, U. S. Corps of Engineers, the boy had been brought up in a cultured home. He attended preparatory schools and the Central High School in this city. With the death of his father, however, the boy lost his restraining influence, and the dime novel and cigarette habits fastened themselves upon him, his mother says. Several small offenses had brought him before Judge De Lacy in Juvenile Court, but each time, through the intercession of his mother, he had been paroled on the promise that he would be reformed.

From the time he left home in June, the day following the passing of the alleged worthless check of $40 on a former schoolmate, nothing was heard of him until a post card marked Glasgow, Scotland, arrived. This was placed in the hands of the New York police and a watch of the incoming steamers set. Within a few minutes after he had left the piers at Hoboken, Lally telegraphed his mother that he would be home before the end of the week. This was also forwarded to the New York detectives, and his arrest followed.

Following the reports from several different residents of this city that they had been victimized by the young man, information has reached the central office detectives of at least two bad checks, for $50, cashed in Glasgow, Scotland. Added to this is the report from the New York police that they have secured evidence of several bad checks in that city and in Connecticut.

Women Held for Robbery.

SUSIE LAUGHS ALOUD

Educated Chimpanzee Able to Imitate Child.

BROUGHT FROM JUNGLELAND

Chaperoned by Her Foster Father,
Prof. Richard L. Garner, Young
Monkey Arrives in New York and Gives Exhibition of Knowledge of Colors and Obeys Commands.

New York, Aug. 21.—Susie arrived today by the French liner La Touraine, chaperoned by her foster father, Prof. Richard L. Garner.

Susie is very young, abnormally precocious, and has a vocabulary that the professor says he understands. She is able to distinguish colors and shapes, and likes beer and wine in moderation.

But her crowning achievement, which differentiates her from all other chimpanzees and anthropoids, is that she can laugh right out loud.

It is not a backward guffaw, nor a maidenly slither, but a pretty close imitation of a child's laugh.

The professor said he had heard that Director Hornaday, of the Bronx Zoo, had said he had never heard of a chimpanzee that could laugh, and that he would like to introduce Susie to Dr. Hornaday.

Lived in Jungleland.
Prof. Garner has been living in jungleland and studying chimpanzees and gorillas, he says, for the last six and a half years. He selected a place in the French Congo, near Lake Fernan Vaz. He took with him a steel cage, six and a half feet square. This went to the bottom of a bay in which his canoe was upset, and he had to make a bamboo cage to replace it.

A native cook and a house boy were his only attendants, and he carried two Winchester rifles, one an automatic, for use in defending his life, as the object of his isolation in the jungle was solely to study at close quarters the habits of the gorilla and chimpanzee and get acquainted with their method of communication.

The result of his study, in which he was on intimate terms with twenty-two chimpanzees and nine gorillas, convinces him that the chimpanzees have a language, as near as the professor can make out of twenty words or so. He said:

"I have tabulated twelve or fourteen words, and I think I understand nine. When I say this I am not exaggerating. I have frequently used the warning call of the chimpanzee, and they have answered it in the bushes."

Faithful to Their Mates.
The professor says that chimpanzees have a vague moral sense. They mate like some humans and are faithful to their mates, and respect the right of other chimpanzees to their partners.

When a chimpanzee family takes up its home in a certain tree the other chimpanzees recognize the property right of the occupant in the tree and all the fruit thereof. The professor had seen cases where orphan chimpanzees were adopted.

The professor says he saw some giant gorillas, two of which were at least six feet tall and weighed between 250 and 300 pounds. They appeared to be as much afraid of man and woman as man and woman were afraid of them. There was no doubt that the gorilla would fight, but only when he feared for the safety of his family. The head of the family was always the battler.

The professor was never attacked, but he was very much startled once by the appearance of a huge gorilla in a place that he had selected for a second camp of observation. He had been told by a chief of the Pahl tribe about this place, which the chief said was populated with gorillas and chimpanzees. The chief's son and nephew went with the professor.

After they had traveled several days, they came to the bank of a stream, and sat on it and ate lunch. The chief's relatives said this was the place where the anthropoids abounded. He had taken out his pipe and filled it and was beginning to smoke when the chief's son touched him on the shoulder and whispered in a frightened tone:

"Ntuyil!"
That meant gorilla. The professor got up and saw the bushes part not more than forty feet away. Through the opening emerged the giant form of the fiercest looking creature the professor ever saw. He was more than six feet tall and he looked every inch of it, as he raised himself alongside the sapling that he had grasped with his right hand and glared at the white man.

Vells Like Indian.
He shook the sapling as if he were about to tear it up by the roots. There was fear, anger, and ferocity depicted on the black quivering face of the gorilla, as it emitted a cry that sounded like a cross between an Indian yell and the baying of a dog. The professor and the natives with him interpreted this cry as a warning to the gorilla's family. He then disappeared.

The chief's son remarked that the gorilla had gone to secrete his family, and that he would come back soon and attack the party. They decided to go. The professor said it was not a good place any more, as it was too far from his base of supplies.

The professor took the reporters down into the butcher's compartment and introduced them to Susie, who is about as big as a two-months-old baby. She is seven and a half months old. She showed a lively interest in the professor the moment he entered the butcher's shop. He asked her:

"Do you love your pop?" And she responded by putting her arms around his neck and kissing him. She put down her foot when he commanded her, and when he asked for part of an orange she was eating she tore off a bit and placed it in the palm of his hand.

Obeys His Commands.
Some one gave her a gumdrop, and the professor said to her: "Don't eat that." She was about to do so, but she paused and handed the confection to one of the reporters. By tickling her under the chin the professor got a gurgle out of Susie that sounded much like a laugh.

The professor knows that Susie can distinguish colors. He proved it by making a revolving case of boxes with movable covers, painted just like the interior of the boxes. He put a lump of sugar—Susie is very fond of sweets—into the green box, and let Susie see him do it. Then he sent the boxes whirling. When they stopped Susie opened the green box and took out the sugar. Then a lump was put into the red box. Susie removed the cover of the red box when the case of boxes ceased to spin. The same thing happened with the other colors.

Susie stayed aboard the ship to-night. Tomorrow she will accompany the professor to Philadelphia, and he will turn her over later to the psychological experts of the University of Pennsylvania.
